The Rich Cousin

Are there any norms in this question of poverty? One thing is sure - a community which gets richer, has everything it needs and is completely self-reliant, will become isolated, just because it needs no help. It will close up in itself and its wealth. It loses its radiance. It will be able to do things for its neighbors, but they will be able to offer nothing in return. There will be no exchange or sharing. The community will become the rich cousin. To what will it witness then?
